Century Avenue is a major highway in Pudong, Shanghai. It begins in the Lujiazui Business District and ends in a pedestrianised section which becomes Century Park. One of the major landmarks on this highway is the massive stainless steel sculpture of a sun dial. Manufactured from 316 stainless steel tubes and sheets, the piece stands in a huge traffic circle, with a beautifully tended garden, featuring green lawns and brightly coloured flowers. This landmark welcomes many visitors arriving in the city from the Pudong International Airport.