Sun Dial Sculpture

Century Avenue is a major highway in Pudong, Shanghai. It begins in the Lujiazui Business District and ends in a pedestrianised section which becomes Century Park. One of the major landmarks on this highway is the massive stainless steel sculpture of a sun dial. Manufactured from 316 stainless steel tubes and sheets, the piece stands in a huge traffic circle, with a beautifully tended garden, featuring green lawns and brightly coloured flowers. This landmark welcomes many visitors arriving in the city from the Pudong International Airport.

Details

Location: Century Avenue, Pudong, Shanghai, China
Grades: 300-series
Surface finish: BA surface
Fabrication process: Welded tube
Manufacturer: Beijing Zhongshenya Sculpture Ltd.
Photographer: Chen Shang Chen
More information: outokumpu.com

For more examples of stainless steel in street furniture, click here.